At Marmalade Trust, we know that loneliness can affect anyone, which is why we're here to provide support and friendship.

If you live in Bristol or South Gloucestershire and you will be on your own on Christmas day, then you could come along to one of our special free Christmas day lunches.

How it works

- Once you decide to come, you will be given the name of a lovely Marmalade volunteer who will call you regularly and arrange everything to do with the day.

- In December, we will telephone you again to find out what you would like to eat and arrange what time to pick you up from your home.
- On Christmas day one of our volunteer drivers will pick you up from your home, and take you in their car to a local pub or restaurant where you will enjoy a Christmas day lunch with our other guests.
- At the end of the meal, they will drive you home again.

Our lunches are held at local restaurants and pubs, with a group of friendly volunteers. It's a lovely way for you to meet new people, enjoy some company and a free Christmas day lunch. We keep the groups small and friendly.
